

When your pet needs advanced veterinary care... the specialists at the 404 Veterinary Referral Hospital are here to help.

Your pet is a member of your family, and when he/she gets sick, it can be a very stressful time. Your family veterinarian is your pet's primary caregiver, and, like your family doctor, is the first contact for general healthcare needs. However, for the times in an animal's life where they may develop an illness or injury requiring advanced diagnostics and procedures, your veterinarian may refer you to a specialty hospital like 404 Veterinary Referral Hospital.

Located in Newmarket, Ontario, the 404 Veterinary Referral Hospital is a one-stop shop for specialty pet healthcare. Featuring board-certified specialists in the fields of small animal surgery, internal medicine, cardiology and dermatology, and advanced diagnostics such as MRI imaging, ultrasonography, endoscopy/arthroscopy – the 404 Veterinary Referral hospital is well equipped to give your furry friends the prompt diagnosis and specialized treatment they need to return to health.

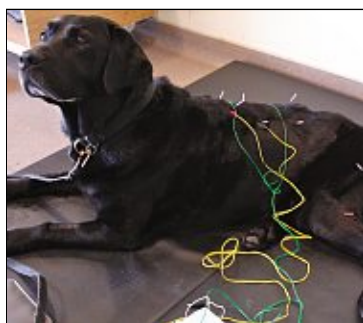

404 Veterinary Referral Hospital features one of the industry's few on-site MRI machines, and also boasts a rehabilitation pool and a pair of underwater treadmills that dogs can enjoy year-round. Overseen by two staff veterinarians certified in physical rehabilitation, the hospital features one of the most fully equipped rehabilitation departments in the country.

Services are available by referral from your regular veterinarian, or by direct access if seeking a second opinion or access to the rehabilitation department. If you think a referral will help your pet, be sure to discuss this option with your primary care veterinarian.
